

Chirurgia (Bucur). 2020;115(3):314-322
<http://dx.doi.org/10.21614/chirurgia.115.3.314>

How to Write a Clinical Paper: Basics, Tips, Traps - Part I

Florin Botea^{1,2}, Irinel Popescu^{1,2}

¹Center of General Surgery and Liver Transplantation, Fundeni Clinical Institute, Bucharest, Romania

²Faculty of Medicine, University "Titu Maiorescu", Bucharest, Romania

Abstract

One of the main goals of clinicians is to constantly improve the healthcare by spreading their expertise and by introducing innovations in medical science. Therefore, publishing is of utmost importance. Moreover, publishing helps authors in developing their academic carrier. Everyone, from students to senior physicians and surgeons, advance in their carrier by publishing papers and by getting their work cited by others. Learning how to properly write and submit a manuscript should be a goal for all medical students, residents, clinicians and researchers. The aim of the current paper, published in 3 parts, is to enable the readers to write and publish their work effectively.

Key words: clinical paper, scientific article, writing skills